Expertise

Litigation & Insolvency , Trusts

Rebecca is a professional support lawyer working in the Knowledge Management team, based in Hong Kong, whose focus is developing the firm's and the team's global innovation strategy. The role provides support to the firm and the knowledge management team, focusing on internal technical knowledge solutions, developing and delivering the firm's knowledge (legal or otherwise) and fostering a culture of knowledge sharing, all to empower the firm with the tools to perform their roles more efficiently.

Rebecca initially worked in the Harneys Litigation and Restructuring practice group in Hong Kong as a professional support lawyer for nearly seven years. There she focused on litigation-specific knowhow and precedents, as well as global knowledge management projects (legislation, knowhow, textbook publications and other library matters). Prior to joining the firm in 2012, Rebecca trained at Rosenblatt Solicitors in London, qualifying into the Corporate department, where she worked on a range of corporate and corporate finance transactions. Prior to training, Rebecca worked in knowledge management and fee-earning roles at a top law firm for five years.
